

To Whom It May Concern:

I am pleased to write a letter of recommendation for Kamryn Martell. I have had the pleasure of getting to know Kamryn over the last year and can attest to her dedication to journalism, exceptional skills in media, and outstanding character.

Kamryn has proven to be a quick learner with a strong work ethic. She has demonstrated strong writing and production skills across multiple media platforms, including podcasts, public relations, print, and social media. What stands out the most about Kamryn is her eagerness to go above and beyond to find the heart of the story.

At California State University, Northridge, she created and hosted three podcasts – having conversations about a range of timely and vital issues including how international students were adjusting to an American school system and a deep dive into open discourse within the Black Lives Matter movement. Kamryn has excelled in every part of the audio process, from booking to writing and editing.

It's incredible to watch Kamryn firsthand as she's working on a story – she's proactive in building out the elements, works quickly under a deadline, and is committed to delivering high-quality work. She's always thinking outside the box – finding innovative ways to improve her storytelling.

One thing I learned early on in this business: you can't teach passion– the type of dedication that makes you want to be the first person in the office and the last to leave – the type of person who always has their eye on the next big story and is ready to go after it. There's no doubt in my mind that Kamryn has all of that and more. She is a team player who values diverse perspectives and feedback. Even more so, she is a wonderful person to be around. Beyond her production skills, she is a genuinely kind and empathetic person.

I wholeheartedly recommend Kamryn for any future employment opportunities. I am confident that she will excel in any opportunity she pursues.

Best,

Rachel Scott

Senior Congressional Correspondent, ABC News

rachel.scott@abc.com

rachelscott.tv@gmail.com

909-973-6717